Please support us

The British Science Association has introduced free communications in order to reach more people and further our objectives of creating a positive social climate in which science, and organisations dependent on it, advances with public consent, involvement and active support. This change does not imply that the British Science Association does not need funding; the British Science Association requires funding more than ever to achieve its objectives. Please support the work of the British Science Association by making a donation using the form overleaf or by contacting the supporter development team.

Thank you for your support.
