

We have a new name and a new logo.
We now operate as the British Science Association
(formerly we were known as the BA).

Wellcome Wolfson Building
165 Queen's Gate
London SW7 5HD
Telephone: 0870 770 7101

www.britishtscienceassociation.org

Registered Charity: 212479 and SCO39236

Established in 1831, the British Science Association is a registered charity which organises major initiatives across the UK, including the British Science Festival, National Science and Engineering Week, programmes of regional and local events and the CREST programme for young people in schools and colleges. We provide opportunities for people of all ages to discuss, investigate, explore and challenge science.

Why the change?

Each of our programmes has tended over time to develop its own identity and design, making cohesion with the organisation's main name and logo difficult to maintain. Our new logo communicates a clear and up-to-date visual expression of our organisation, reflecting its role and purpose for today and linking our programme brands.

Our vision and logo

Our vision is a society in which people are able to access science, engage with it and feel a sense of ownership about its direction. In such a society science advances with, and because of, the involvement and active support of the public. Our programmes are all directed towards the achievement of that vision and our new identity reflects that vision and purpose.

CREST Awards

www.britishtscienceassociation.org